PETITION FOR REHEARING

I. INTRODUCTION

Pursuant to Supreme Court Rule 44.2 petitioner Tyrone Duff petitions the Court for rehearing on its decision entered October 1, 2007, that denied his petition for writ of certiorari and upheld the Ninth Circuit's decision, which conflicts with the existing authoritative decision by the Second Circuit's on the same matter of 'jurisdiction' in Maestri v. Jutkofsky, which is intervening circumstances of a substantial and/or controlling effect.

II. ARGUMENT

Rehearing is warranted on the Supreme Court's decision, entered October 1, 2007, that upheld the Ninth Circuit's decision that conferred jurisdiction where none existed in the State of New York, which conflicts with the Court's prior decision, entered February 21, 1989 that upheld the existing decision by Second Circuit on the same important matter of 'jurisdiction' in Maestri v. Jutkofsky, 850 F.2d 50, 53 (2nd Cir. 1988)[*28] cert. denied, 489, U.S. 1016, 109 S.Ct. 1132, 103 L.Ed. 2d 193 (1989). Maestri makes it clear there is a difference between an action that is 'erroneous' or even in 'excess of jurisdiction' and one that is in the 'clear absence of all jurisdiction' over the subject matter, which absolute immunity is unavailable. See Mireles v. Waco, 502 U.S. 9, 12 (1991); Antoine v. Byers & Anderson, Inc., 508 U.S. 429, 432 (1993).

It is evident, the Supreme Court failed to uphold the Constitution and the Rule of Law, without respect to persons when it upheld the Ninth Circuit's decision that conflicted with the Court's prior decision, entered February 21, 1989, which upheld the existing decision by the Second Circuit in Maestri. The Court has now upheld and entered two (2) conflicting decisions of case law by two (2) Circuit Courts on the same important matter of 'jurisdiction', setting fraudulent case law and a false precedent that can be cited in deciding similar cases, which substantially affects the integrity and creditability of the United States Supreme Court. See Hazel-Atlas Glass Co. v. Hartford-Empire Co., 322 U.S. 238, 245-246 (1944).

It is not within the Ninth Circuit's inherent power to confer jurisdiction where none existed and to permanently enforce a Nevada State Court's blanket restraining order against the petitioner in the State of New York. See Tucker v. Outwater, 118 F.3d 930, 932-933 (2d Cir. 1997); James v. Borg, 24 F.3d 20, 24 (9th Cir.), cert. denied, 115 S.Ct. 333 (1994); Gray v. Raines, 662 F.2d 569, 571 (9th Cir. 1991); People v. McCarty, 94 Ill. 2d 37 (1983); Cole v. Arkansas, 333 U.S. 196 (1948). The authority of every tribunal is necessary restricted by the territorial limits of the State in which it is established. Any attempt to exercise authority beyond those limits would be deemed in every other forum, as has been by this court, an illegitimate assumption of power. Pennoyer v. Neff 95 U.S. 714 (1877); Stump v. Sparkman, 435 U.S. 349 (1978); Main v. Thiboutot, 100 S.Ct. 2502 (1980).

The Supreme Court not only upheld the Ninth Circuit's decision that directly conflicted with the existing decision by the Second Circuit on the same important matter of 'jurisdiction' in Maestri, but upheld the Ninth Circuit's assumption of authority outside the territorial boundaries of its offices in the jurisdiction of the Second Circuit in order to enter that decision, is 'outrageous'. See King v. Thornburg, 762 F. Supp. 336, 341 (S.D.Ga. 1991) (citing Rankin v. Howard, 633 F. 2d 844 (1980); People ex rel. Gowdy v. Baltimore & Ohio R.R. Co., 385 Ill. 86 92 52 N.E. 2d 255 (1943); People v. Brewer, 328 Ill. 472, 483 (1928); Old Wayne Mut. L. Assoc. v. McDonough, 204 U.S. 8, 27 S.Ct. 236 (1907).

This case now calls for an exercise of the Supreme Court supervisory power to compel the Ninth Circuit to act within the jurisdiction of the territorial boundaries of its office and prohibit it from acting outside its jurisdiction and reverse its extrajurisdictional acts in its decision, where it has now encroached in the jurisdiction of the Second Circuit, which conflicts with the Court's decision, entered February 21, 1989 that upheld the existing decision by the Second Circuit on the same important matter of 'jurisdiction' in Maestri. See Rowe v. Fort Lauderdale, 2002 U.S. App. 885, *19n. 10, 15Fla. Weekly Fed. At C241 n. 10 (11th Cir. 2002). The Court must uphold the Constitution and Rule of Law, without respect to persons and vacate its decision, entered October 1, 2007, as unconstitutional and uphold the Second Circuit's decision in Maestri. See Marbury v. Madison, 1 Cranch 137 (1803).

It is not the Supreme Court's position to act with respect to persons, but to uphold to the best of its ability at all times in all cases coming before it, the Constitution and the Rule of Law without respect to persons, in order for justice to prevail, for anything less is an obstruction of justice. Should the Supreme Court continue to refuse to uphold the Constitution and the Rule of Law without respect to persons and its own case law in Maestri, the petitioner will have no other recourse but to address this entire matter before the House Judiciary Committee, where the geographic and/or territorial boundaries of the jurisdiction of the federal courts can only be changed by an act of Congress.

III. CONCLUSION

Based on the intervening circumstances set forth herein that are both substantial and controlling, Petitioner respectfully request that his petition for rehearing be granted.

Respectfully submitted,

TYRONE DUFF
